Grants and research funding

I am currently holding a Insight Grant of the Social Sciences and Humanities Council of Canada (SSHRC) for collaborative research on the Bosporan Kingdom (2017–2022). Previously, I held a SSHRC Standard Research Grant for my research project on Ancient Galatia (central Turkey) (2011-2015), as well as two SSHRC Connection Grants for workshops on Seleukid History (2013, 2015). To involve as many qualified students as possible into my research, I regularly apply for further funds through the Ontario Work-Study-Program (OWS – WSP) or the International Study Program at Waterloo. Since 2000, my research also found the support of many other academic institutions or granting agencies, such as the University of Waterloo (UW Faculty of Arts, UW Office of Research), the Collaborative Research Centre Strangers and Poor People at the University of Trier in Germany (SFB 600), the German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD), the Humboldt Foundation (Germany) and the Société Latomus (Belgium).

c) Further Collaboration with Graduate and Doctoral Students as well as Postdocs (2009–2019):

I served on the PhD committee of Germain Payen, Université Laval, Québec & La Sorbonne, Paris: Les conséquences du traité d'Apamée en Asie Mineure (PhD thesis defended in May 2016). He worked with me as postdoctoral fellow at Waterloo from Sep. 2017 to Dec. 2018. We conducted research on the Bosporan and Seleukid Kingdoms and I provided training for academic teaching in FT 2017 (CLAS 252: Roman History), Winter 2018 (CLAS 251: Greek History) and Fall 2019 (CLAS 486/652: History of Judaea).

Besides, I cooperate with or informally advise several MA candidates, PhD candidates and Postdocs internationally.

Other Relevant Teaching Information

a) General Information

From 2009 to 2019, I taught 37 CLAS and LAT courses or 23 different courses respectively. Most of the courses, I designed myself. Many of them are cross-listed between two (rarely three) levels.

I occasionally contribute to other classes, such as CLAS 100 (one or two lectures on Roman History in FT 2010, FT 2011), the Arts Lecture Series Cultural Encounters – Encountering Cultures (lecture on Roman citizenship, WT 2010) or the Graduate Methodology Seminar (CLAS 600), such as on Interstate Diplomacy (FT 2012), Late Roman Law (FT 2016, FT 2017) or Black Sea Studies (FT 2018).

I have experimented with various formats to provide highly dedicated undergraduates and graduates some extra-curricular exposure to ongoing research or additional methodological training. In 2011/12, I ran a bi-weekly Research Colloquium and also a German Reading Group. Thereafter, I have been organizing various kinds of workshops, partly only geared towards students, partly with mixed audiences, listed under Service.

Many students under my supervision have won prices within and outside the Waterloo Department of Classical Studies (the latter are listed under Graduate Supervision above and under Undergraduate Supervision below), presented at workshops or conferences (ibidem) or come forward with their first publications, in part peer-reviewed (as listed below, b) 3)).

b) Undergraduate Supervision at UW (2009–2019)

1) Honours Thesis and Independent Study (2011–2014)

Our department offered the option of an undergraduate thesis or independent studies only under special circumstances until 2014 and has been requiring exceptional circumstances thereafter.

FT 2013-ST 2014: Tanner Rudnick: Honours Thesis Commentary on Cicero, Pro rege Deiotaro.
